

SCARCITY OF FRUIT PREVENTS CANNING

Sugar Down but Other Prices Considered Too High— Few Jars Sold.

One more season of a lack of home-canned fruit will be experienced this year, according to the amount of fruit and sugar that are being purchased by local housewives. The reason given this year, and it seems to be true after conditions in the fruit market are investigated, is that, while the price of sugar is way down, the fruits were so scarce that they were almost too expensive to eat, even while in season, and that to put up any strawberries, raspberries, currants, or any of the other fruits usually canned for winter consumption, was out of the question.

Last year, the condition was exactly reversed. Fruits were in abundance and the price was low but few could afford to do any canning with the price of sugar out of sight.

Because of the frost that came late in the season, the strawberry crop in this and in other sections, which usually ship-in fruit in this locality, was almost done for. The same condition prevailed when it came time for raspberries. Few were seen on the tables in local homes during the time when they are usually so plentiful. Blackberries lasted but a short time and pineapples, while good, were high in price all season.

At one store it was stated that not one jar of any fruit was sold to a single person for canning and very few large orders for sugar had been received. Stores handling Mason jars and other glassware used to put up fruit state that their supply remains the same as ever, very few jars having been sold.

Two fruits yet remain which may save the fruit canning season from an entire failure. Those two are apples and peaches. The peach market will be at its best soon and according to prices so far, there is not as serious a shortage as in the other fruits. Though may be received here to make their canning worth while. While the apple prospect is poor at present, the product from other sections may help to make it closer to normal and permit many of the good products that can be made from them.

ICELAND SOLEMNLY WELCOMES KING ON FIRST VISIT

Reykjavik, Iceland—The first king of Iceland set foot for the first time recently on Icelandic soil. The welcome extended by the islanders to Christian X, of Denmark and also of Iceland, bore a solemnly fervent character; apparently more solemn than was anticipated by the gay, easy-going crowd of Danish visitors who had come over for the occasion.

The islanders themselves took their king's visit tremendously seriously, and regarded it as an event of momentous import. The majority of the capital, 14,000 inhabitants, on the day around the public school building, which was made the official residence of the Danish royals, and re-baptized "the Castle," Reykjavik, awaited the king's arrival, carrying important looking uniforms and decorated dignitaries to and from "the Castle."

At a gala dinner, Queen Alexandrine of the Icelandic national assembly, the 70,000-crown gift of the women of Iceland. With her heavy golden crown, it made the queen look like a tapestry picture of a viking queen of old.

Both the king and the queen visited historical Icelandic places on horseback. The king was mounted on a beautiful white charger, 15 hands high, the tallest horse in Iceland. Several excursions planned had to be abandoned owing to the swollen state of the rivers.

EXPLODE POPULAR FEAR OF X-RAYS

Paris—X-ray laboratories have been found to constitute by slight, if any danger to persons in adjacent rooms. A report to the Academy of Medicine held that modern appliances and conditions generally existing in X-ray rooms sufficiently protect all but the operators.

The report was prepared by a commission after receiving reports to the academy that X-rays were a serious menace to people in buildings housing laboratories.

It was contended the rays would penetrate walls with force enough left to cause serious injury. This contention was found by the commission to be ill-founded.

Court Life of Japan
Gets Democracy Dose
Tokyo—Changes in the Japanese court life of Japan and in the relations of the imperial family to the people, as a result of the visit of Prince Hiroaki to Japan.

It is likely the printing of photographs of members of the imperial family in newspapers and magazines will be permitted. The many guests which are always entertained on the occasion of a visit of a member of the imperial family to any place outside the palace will also be simplified, if the suggestions which have been formulated by officers of the imperial household are accepted.

According to one report, the household department requested the crown prince to inquire while he is abroad into the customs which are followed in the royal family of Great Britain and as to the social works which are undertaken by them. It is assumed that these customs and practices which exist in Great Britain will be adopted here following the crown prince's return to Japan.

Jugoslav War Dept.
To Cost Half of Budget
Belgrade—The war department of the new kingdom of Yugoslavia will cost 2,000,000,000 dinars, one-half the government's total budget, in the next fiscal year, despite vigorous efforts by the minister of finance to reduce expenses. The total estimated cost of the war department is 4,000,000,000 dinars from the estimates asked for by the war ministry. The total budget estimates were 8,000,000,000 dinars, but this has been reduced to 4,000,000,000. The total estimated cost of a dinar is about 15 cents but at the present rate it is worth about three cents.

HARDING SUGGESTS NEW BROAD POLICY

Works Out Compromise to Satisfy Farmers and Business.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright 1921, by Jamesville Gazette.
Washington—President Harding has had to intervene again in the affairs of congress. The agricultural group, which once before threatened to upset the administration program has finally succeeded in forcing to the front its proposals to finance agriculture, and the Harding administration has been forced to work out a compromise plan which is designed to satisfy the agricultural element and cure a few other domestic troubles at the same time. It is the most significant step that has been taken in the fourth of March.

The president is suggesting a broad policy, which is, in a sense, a reversal of the policy of the year ago, but which has been made necessary by developments and circumstances. When the war ended, the republican congress put an end to the everywhere was to take the government out of the banking business. Economic distress developed a demand for the revival of the financial system. This was bitterly fought by Secretary Houston and the Wilson administration, but congress passed the measure over the presidential veto. It was a law that the government would do only an incidental thing and would not engage in any financing private business on a large scale.

But the revival of the war finance corporation hasn't proved sufficient. The farmers are not satisfied. They realized the corporation did help finance exports, but its powers were not adequate to finance the delivery on this side of the water—the movement from farm to seaboard. So the Norris bill was proposed, whereby a revolving fund would be used to make available sums of the way from $100,000,000 to $100,000,000,000. It looked like a class legislation and seemed to set up a rival organization to the war finance corporation. Secretary Hoover, Wallace and Miller, and Eugene Meyer, managing director of the war finance corporation, and they evaded a bill which would attempt to broaden the scope of the war finance corporation so as to do all that the Norris bill intended.

At the same time the administration realizing that congress wasn't in a mood to pay out money to the railroad, decided that it would be a good idea to counter the railroad financial problem with the farm aid proposal and try to make an omnibus bill of it. In other words, the Harding administration had in effect found it necessary to go back to wartime methods and build an institution which will be an auxiliary to the government's financial machinery and will devote itself exclusively to emergency credit situations growing out of the adjustments on the farm and on the railroads, and presumably will help other classes of industry which need financing.

The war finance corporation is required by law to extend credit only if private capital is unable to finance legitimate export companies. But the government is obliged to subsidize the class of securities offered as credit and the nature of the contracts of the export concern. The president feels that it is desirable to have a single board look after all these questions rather than have credit extended through different government agencies.

The agricultural element doesn't like the idea of financing the railroads through the new bill which, on the one hand side tracks the Norris measure, and on the other hand makes provision for payments to the railroads. The farmers' spokesmen would like to see the railroads reduce freight rates before being given any more money. That's why the administration program will encounter much opposition in congress, and the dem-

Bryan Lauds Women for Liquor Fight in Great Address in Delavan Park

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
The same wide expansive smile, the same clear logical thinking, the same flowing oratory, with which William Jennings Bryan has charmed his audiences for the last 20 years was still shown by the "Great Commoner" in his address Tuesday afternoon before an immense audience in the school park at Delavan.

He discussed present day issues, with a vigor, born of long experience with public affairs, and a clearness of vision, which conveyed to the audience a sense of study and deep thinking. There was no bitterness in his soul, from the many defeats he has encountered in his political career, but plenty of humorous jokes at his own expense and sly hits at the mistakes of his party.

He was strong in his denunciation of the attempts made by military, and ammunition makers, to defeat the attempt of those who did not believe in war, and he said that the coming conference on disarmament may well become the most momentous step of the century, in world history.

U. S. Favors Peace.
"The overflowing sentiment of this country at this time," he said, "is in favor of peace, and in spite of the very large appropriations made by the secretaries of war and navy for defensive equipment, the house and senate, listening to the unmitigated voice of the people, have steadily applied the restraining knife and cut down on these demands. The idea of compulsory military training, with its billions of dollars needed for that purpose, is dead and will never be resurrected."

"Although the United States may not arrive at national agreement with the great powers of disarmament, yet it will be worth while for this country to raise its standard high as an example, and appeal to the common people of other countries to join us, by compelling the cabinets who represented them to resign or fall in line."

He felt that the World was warring almost entirely by nominally Christian people, was a grave indictment of the church, and that the church anywhere, everywhere, must rally to the idea of preventing war in the future as a Christian duty.

Tribute to Women.
He paid a tribute to the women of the nation, who he said worked for prohibition through 40 years of discouragement, and said, "I am counting on the women who have bravely suffered suffering, to stand guard at the grave of John Barleycorn, and see that for him, there is no resurrection."

The topic of his address, "Where Are the Nine?" was the nine who are the nine lepers healed by Jesus, when only one of them, came to him and expressed his thanks. The underlying lesson brought out by his thought, was the ingratitude shown by the American people after receiving all kinds of benefits at the hands of the government, in repayment.

He will probably assist the republican insurgents in their fight to keep the farm credit plan from being tied up with the aid to the railroads. The administration will have its way eventually, but the significant thing thus far is that a broad plan for the financing of private enterprises, had to be proposed by President Harding and his advisers to meet the demands of the agricultural group and the needs of the railroads. The stops are calculated to help business back to normal, though the requirements and desires of the different classes of industry are making the road a rough one to travel. Every day the legislative situation gets more and more entangled with the problems of business, and the Harding administration now finds it necessary to add to tariff and taxation another essential—the financing of exports and domestic transportation.

TAKES INSURANCE AGAINST HAIL AND COLLECTS NEXT DAY

John A. Bley, farmer in the town of Harmony, will probably play his "hunches" in the future. Early in July he had a "hunch" he ought to insure his tobacco crop against damage by hail so about 9 o'clock on Monday morning he walked into the office of G. S. Morse & Son to take out a policy. "When does that take effect?" he inquired after signing up. "At noon today," was the reply. About 2 o'clock that same afternoon, as fate would have it, a bad storm swept the country and hail fell on many points. Six acres of tobacco on the Bley farm were slightly damaged by the hail for which he collected $5 per acre from the insurance company. The policy had not even reached the insurance company's main office.

CITY IS DANGEROUS CATHOLICS OF 12 FOR "MOON" SALES CITIES ORGANIZE

Two More Draw Stiff Terms Here for Mixing Up With Liquor.

Enforcement of the new state prohibition law in Janesville, continued Wednesday with the sentencing of two more to 60 and 90-day terms in the county jail.

Paul E. Kosowsky, convicted by a municipal court jury for selling moonshine to a barber, was fined $100 and costs amounting to $94.25. He chose the alternative, 60 days with Sheriff Cash H. McLaughlin.

Kosowsky, who entered a plea of not guilty Tuesday to the new charge of having bought liquor, changed his plea and was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail. He also elected the jail sentence. J. G. McWilliams appeared for him to ask clemency.

"I am sorry I bought to mix with a gallon of water to kill pot bugs with," Kosowsky told Chief Charles Newman when shown the remnants of his bottle of moonshine after he had sobered up. And police are willing to admit it would make a good mixture for that purpose, but not for human consumption—the use to which Kosowsky put it.

That Janesville is going to be given a thorough cleanup from the booze standpoint is apparent from Chief Newman's actions and the cooperation of the city fathers. J. G. McWilliams in dealing out heavy terms. "A few more sentences like these and there won't be much more of it," said Chief Newman.

"I am going to get these sentences as fast as they're brought in here," declared Judge Maxfield.

Japs Accept Harding Bid to Conference

Washington—Secretary of State Hughes Wednesday announced that the Japanese government had accepted the proposal for a Far Eastern conference in connection with the disarmament discussions, suggested by President Harding.

Rain General in Wisconsin

A heavy rain, lasting most of the night and continuing throughout Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, cooled the humid atmosphere of Janesville Wednesday and brought a strong breeze with it. However, a light shower continued through the morning, causing the heat to be felt during lulls in the wind. An eight degree jump was experienced in five hours.

In some localities of the state, the fall was much heavier than in others. Extreme northern points report an inch and a half with northern portions of Wisconsin reporting from a quarter to a half inch.

Railroad men coming here from Fond du Lac on freight trains Wednesday declared the rainfall was general and steady the entire distance.

PREPARE REPORT ON SITES FOR PROPOSED COUNTY SANITARIUM

Sites for the proposed county tuberculosis sanitarium were being sought by the special committee of the Rock county board meeting Tuesday afternoon. The meeting and inspection was for a report to be made to the board meeting August 1.

An option was obtained on the latter property. The road which is near enough to the county property to allow one superintendent to take charge of the new property if purchased. Prices are being sought for the county board report.

STRAY "FLIVVER" IS FINALLY CLAIMED; OWNER IS SOUGHT

The stray Ford touring car picked up here last week by Officer Charles Handy was finally claimed Tuesday by H. P. Peterson, Salem, Wis., a used car salesman. A certificate of title is attached to the abandonment of the machine here.

Peterson told Chief Newman that the car was sold to Earl Brinkbecker, a married man, Bassett, made, and the understanding $30 a month would be paid following Brinkbecker's disappearance from Bassett several days ago with the machine on the road. The car was found by Peterson drove the car back to Salem after thanking the police.

The bulk of the milk produced by marketing company members is still being shipped to Beloit.

HAS NEW KIND OF PLEA FOR DIVORCE

Evansville Man Says Wife Is Too Uncleanly to Live With.

There are divorces for cruel and inhuman treatment, desertion and statutory claims, but it is for Paul T. Noll, Evansville, to bring a new cause into the Rock county circuit court for a divorce according to a complaint filed Tuesday afternoon. Noll wants a divorce from his wife, Eva Noll, because she wouldn't use plain soap and water.

"I took but one bath during the winter of 1920 and 1921 and did not change her underclothes," the husband vows that the stench was so bad he could not sleep in the same room with her.

"I fight to keep clean," the complaint alleges that the wife was not only filthy but also neglected to use the scrub brush on the children, did not wash the dishes, and "it was a constant fight for clean articles to eat with."

The husband further states she had a violent temper and believes he is entitled to a divorce and the custody of the children.

In the answer filed to the complaint, the wife made a general denial of the allegations. The complaint was filed by Nolan, Dougherty and Grubb, Attorneys.

Alleging improper conduct, Lilla M. Kinnel, Janesville, obtained a divorce from her husband, William Carl Kinnel, on the charge of improper conduct. She alleged her husband used his fists to blacken her eyes whenever she mentioned the "other woman." The divorce was ordered by Judge Grimm Tuesday afternoon.

Papers were filed for a divorce action between Milton B. Rogers, a policeman, and Lena J. Rogers, married in Leno Rock, Richland county, August, 1892. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant has a "uniformly brutal and abusive manner."

Enter Judgments

A petition was filed by Alice Sive against Roy Sive, both from Beloit, for a divorce on the claim of non-support. She seeks alimony and the custody of the children.

Judgment was signed by Judge Grimm in the case of the G. T. Mickle Lumber company against D. A. Matson and Arthur L. Lindstrom amounting to $11,667.98 and six per cent interest. This suit was tried during May when the Mickle company, a Chicago lumber dealer, sued the Janesville Matson-Lindstrom company for $18,000 and was awarded a part of the amount claimed.

Judgment for $7,004.83 was entered in favor of James Scoggs against W. L. Hoague, Abbe M. Hoague, W. North, Emergence Colwell, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wendt on a promissory note.

The Bank of Southern Wisconsin against Joseph J. Murphy, the costs was granted judgment for $40 amounting to $133.42.

DRIVER OF POLICE PATROL RESIGNS

Tired of Working 12 Hours a Day, Says Barry, Night Driver.

John Barry, night driver of the police ambulance-patrol for the past 16 months, will hand in his resignation to the police and fire commission within the next 24 hours. It became known Wednesday. It is to take effect Friday morning.

"I am sick of working 12 hours a day and Sundays," said Barry. "I am not resigning because of any trouble with the new chief. He has been square with me and I think I am as good today as the day I came but I have a better offer and am going to take it."

The 12-hour a day schedule was also given as one of the reasons for Barry's resignation. As desk sergeant last week.

It is understood that Barry will take a position with the C. & N. W. railroad.

Barry is the fifth man to leave the police department within the last three months.

Darry began work on the police department more than a year's service on the fire department as truck driver at No. 2 station. He was efficient in his police work and took excellent care of the police patrol.

CURES BY DRAINING LARYNX, CONVENTION OF OSTEOPATHS TOLD

Cleveland. Dr. C. W. Young of Grand Junction, Colo., described to the convention of the American Osteopathic association his newly discovered method of draining the larynx of abnormal secretions.

By placing his finger in the upper surface of the larynx or behind it, Dr. Young said he makes the secretions come out, thus relieving the larynx to drain.

Results have been secured by this technique in bronchitis, asthma, goiter, enlarged thyroid gland, tuberculosis and other affections of the lungs and throat, Dr. Young claims.

Dr. Jeannette H. Bolles of Denver, declared health is the foundation of all happiness and success. The foundation for health, she said, depends on inheritance, personal hygiene or right living, and public hygiene or right community health habits.

"Aside from accidents and injuries to the body, deformities may be produced by bad posture, which may result from weakness, bad habits, standing on one foot, or roller skating on one foot," Dr. Bolles said.

The increased prevalence of divorce in proportion to the growing wealth of the country was attributed by Dr. E. E. Tucker of New York to a change in function of the pituitary body, one of the smallest of the so-called ductless glands. He said this little organ is about the size of a pea and is hidden on the underside of the brain.

CHEESE MEN PLAN BIG COMBINATION

Merger of Wisconsin and Minnesota Bodies Is Proposed.

(By Associated Press.)
Plymouth, Wis.—A combination between the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' Federation and the Minnesota Cheese Producers' association, which is expected to result in the handling of 20,000,000 pounds of cheese, is said to be in the process of formation. At a meeting here Tuesday, directors of the Wisconsin federation voted to admit the Minnesota producers on the same terms as factories in Wisconsin.

The proposed consolidation, it is said, will be a factor in determining the price of the product.

Three Wisconsin counties, Marathon, Grant and Clark, are said to be considering membership in the federation. These counties produce approximately 4,000,000 pounds of cheese annually.

Based on prospective memberships in the proposed combination, it is expected that within three years the federation will control the marketing of more than 75,000,000 pounds of cheese annually.

FARM MORTGAGES.

In a period during which prices of farm products have ranged higher than ever before in the history of the world, the mortgage debt of American farmers has more than doubled. This burden of debt has increased from $1,750,172,551 in 1910 to $4,012,711,233 in 1920. Doubtless these statistics will be widely quoted by agitators to bolster the contention that the agriculturists have been unfairly treated. There are, however, many phases of the situation to be considered. A clue to the important factor explaining what has been taking place may be found in the further statistical statement that the value of the farms increased 117.6 per cent during the same period. Primarily a piece of property may be said to be worth what it will bring. The prices at which farms have been sold doubtless were taken by the census bureau as the proper index of farm values. And back of this lies the estimate of the purchasers of what they could gain in return for tillage of the land, an estimate which during the 10-year period was stimulated by the remarkable inflation of farm produce prices. Out of such conditions came an unprecedented movement of the farm real estate market. Farms were sold again and again, assuming with each transaction the fat profits of the sellers and in most cases pyramided mortgages. The totaling of mortgage burdens, therefore, does not afford a fair basis for deduction as to the prosperity or profitability of agriculture. It may be safely asserted that the practical farmer who has worked his land and conducted his business according to approved methods has made more money than ever before. It is unfortunate that because of the speculative tendencies of the period of inflation, these diligent and industrious farmers seem in danger of suffering in the reaction which may follow.—Reed.

GOOD OLD PIRATE SHIP BARLEYCORN.

Another mystery of the sea has been explained by the storm-driven schooner which put into harbor at Atlantic City loaded with liquor. This is the phantom ship that has been patrolling the seas outside of New York and is now said to have been smuggling liquor in for the entrenched booze ring of that city. It is claimed by the U. S. district attorney of New York that millions of dollars worth of liquors have been smuggled into the city by this schooner. According to admiralty law, outside the three mile limit from shore is outside the operation of law. Therefore it has been held that the schooner was immune from libel. From this vessel has been transferred liquor to smaller boats and tugs. Now that she has been forced to put into Atlantic City she will be in the hands of the government and her officers and crew are liable under the customs laws for smuggling and under the liquor laws for violation thereof. It is one more of the efforts of the money-mad whiskey ring to defeat the purpose of the law. There has been nothing in crime outside the selling of crooked and worthless oil stocks that has netted the criminals of the country so much as has the handling of whiskey and it is going to be hard to finally break up the violations but eventually it will be done and the crime will be no more common than others like burglary, forgery, bad check passing and picking pockets.

OUR INTELLECTUAL CIRCUS
BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Washington, D. C.—High in the list of typically American institutions, together with Election Day and the Ziegfeld Follies, is the increasingly popular form of entertainment known as the Chautauqua, which has been termed the Intellectual Circus of America. Chautauqua authorities say that last year approximately one-third of the population of the United States—35,440,750 people—attended Chautauqua performances. It has been predicted this year the number enjoying this form of educational entertainment and its sister type, the lyceum program, will reach the 50,000,000 mark.

Every state has communities which patronize the Chautauqua, but the "great Chautauqua belt," as the drama term has it, lies in the middle western states including especially: Iowa, which has 130; Illinois, 322; Ohio, 277; and Pennsylvania, 108. New York state has 201 separate Chautauquas, aside from the great organization at Lake Chautauqua. Last year 5,851 towns granted their inhabitants and those of neighboring communities the privilege of Chautauqua programs. The movement is growing beyond the bounds of this country and two continents, including four countries, have Chautauquas in their midst. In North America the United States, Canada and Alaska have these organizations. In Australia Chautauqua programs are given in New Zealand. Chinese students in this country are said to be eager to carry the Chautauqua movement to their home country and Lloyd George, prime minister of England, has been quoted as giving the Chautauqua his heartiest approval. There seem to be four prime factors in the psychological basis which lies beneath the marvelous success of this institution. They are the getting away of the members of the audience from their mere community interest in the local scene; the fact that a large body of people under the cover of one of these khaki-covered colleges; the formal discussion of big problems; and the decidedly informal atmosphere of the place where the program is given.

Come inside the big brown tent and stand (with others) behind one of the police which support the great brown "top." Every folding chair in the place is filled with solid men, nervous women, blinking children. A young woman in a foulard dress sits with folded hands before the rented upright piano. A row of perspiring but earnest speakers and town officials rest their hands on their knees as they sit in a semi-circle on the little platform, the architectural crudeness of which is hidden beneath gay red, white and blue draperies. They thus poke out the splintering electric lights. The important part of the program is the flock of automobiles outside, is sounded occasionally. At length the gentleman standing by the rickety little cherry-varnished stand supporting the proverbial pitcher of ice-water, has ceased speaking. A swarming buzz of discussion gradually arises after the first timidly volunteered questions. Struggling groups wait to shake the speaker's hand. The "string quartet," which played Tschalkovsky's music, came, and the pianist strikes up the Star Spangled Banner. The subject on the program may be on any issue of general interest. New foods, Shakespearean drama, selections from grand opera, clever readings by famous authors, Bolshevism, the League of Nations, the latest thing in airplanes, national debts, are all subjects which have been brought before interested Chautauqua audiences.

The admission price is low, the program full of live interest and the entire performance carefully thought out and planned beforehand as the menu which a skilled French chef prepares for the most particular of banquets. The mental diet qualities of each program are carefully weighed prior to their selection. There may be a certain number of calories of science, a few of travel, considerable music of varying kinds, a little politics, and this year especially, plenty of good solid Americanism. The Randolph Chautauqua System, one of the largest of the 14 large systems in the United States is specializing in American ideals this season. The three big programs offered by this system have as their topics "America's Political Ideal," "America's Social Ideal" and "America's Industrial Ideal." The other numbers on this Chautauqua's programs for the present season are equally topics of the moment including "A Community Program," "The Value of the Individual" and "America's Art." The last is a detachment of men collected from the recent educational centers of the United States army. This Randolph system is said to be the only one in the country which carefully collects the material and performers for the entire season's programs in preliminary cooperation to see that there will be no overlapping of interests, no trite methods of treatment and, above all, that there may be continuity in each program. All of the various systems attempt to give some inspiration, spur some of the many, hitherto with ambition and effort accurate material for the entire season's programs in preliminary cooperation to see that there will be no overlapping of interests, no trite methods of treatment and, above all, that there may be continuity in each program. All of the various systems attempt to give some inspiration, spur some of the many, hitherto with ambition and effort accurate material for the entire season's programs in preliminary cooperation to see that there will be no overlapping of interests, no trite methods of treatment and, above all, that there may be continuity in each program.

What was evidently the life germ of the whole Chautauqua idea was the plan which originated in the brain of Dr. Josiah E. Royce, son of a Revolutionary war veteran, when he organized 40 farmers and mechanics into Millbrook Branch number one of the American Lyceum in Massachusetts in 1826. Mr. Millbrook later founded the Concord Lyceum and the Boston Lyceum, of which Daniel Webster was the first president. The evolution of the lyceum into the Chautauqua, however, was the idea of the late Bishop John H. Vincent of the Methodist Episcopal church. It is interesting to note, in this connection, that Bishop Vincent, like Abraham Lincoln, who was a friend and admirer of the bishop, was self-educated by a cabin fire-place. His motto was "Education ends only with life." Dr. Vincent was responsible for the first meeting on the shores of Lake Chautauqua, New York, of what has become known as the "Mother Chautauqua of the World," in 1879. Dr. Vincent undoubtedly had a deep understanding of America and her people. Uneducated homes have felt the influence or otherwise denied the privileges of a college education had the sting removed from their regret when Lake Chautauqua, under the supervision of Dr. Vincent, opened possibilities of achieving "concentrated" wisdom. Both the summer school and the home reading courses offered through this medium have proved exceedingly popular.

Many, also, are the distinguished men and women who have spoken from Chautauqua platforms all over the country. The American sense of humor has made much of the fact that statesmen, returned travelers, writers and other professionals temporarily out of a job have taken up Chautauqua lecturing in homeopathic doses. Most of them have been successful in interesting the public or they have justified that innate curiosity which always invests the human spectator when viewing a much-talked-of specimen of more or less neurological oddity. In the latest fashions of Chautauqua, however, in addition to the especially prepared mental menus, there are some Chautauqua systems which choose their men and give them assignments to go out into the wide, wide world and manufacture material to interest the Chautauqua of the future. Ralph Waldo Emerson was the first famous professional lecturer on a lyceum program. He spoke in one hall 28 times without pay for his services, but before he finished he was getting $500 a night. Henry Ward Beecher, another of the pioneer lyceum and Chautauqua lecturers, was fond of telling the story of how "once down East I was paid for my services with 13 bushels of potatoes." Other famous Chautauqua speakers are: Mark Twain, Oliver Wendell Holmes, James Russell Lowell, Oliver A. Ames, Henry James, Matthew Arnold, Julia Ward Howe, Irvin S. Cobb, former President Taft, W. J. Bryan, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, physician to three presidents, Stephen Leacock, Senator W. S. Kenyon, Dr. Harvey Wiley and Edna Ferber.

JUST FOLKS
BY EDGAR A. GUEST
THE GOODY-GOODY MAN.
I do not mind the man who rides his hobbles, I can abide the gadabout now and then. I think the creature found in hotel lobbies. Some day perhaps may change and grow to men.
I can live with him who merely bores me, And be polite to pests of every kind. But one there is who positively floors me, The gentleman who's overly refined.
I do not mind the man with worn-out stories, At least he wants to cheer me up a bit; The boastful man who magnifies his glories, May some day see his foolishness and quit; The snooty man is bound to get along with, But even him I would not wholly ban; There's only one I am forever wrong with, The ever-perfect goody-goody man.
The game of life is tough and men must play it, To be a man one has to stand the grunt, A spade's a spade—why be afraid to say it? The meaning's clearer when the speech is blunt.
A man can be a man and act politely, Can live with men and keep a polished mind; All eyes at times must look on things unsightly, And vigor dies that is too-much refined.

Who's Who Today
KING HAARON VII.
Three kings were present at the silver wedding of King Haakon and Queen Maud of Norway at Christiania, recently—King George of England, King Gustaf of Sweden and King Christian of Denmark. By the people of Norway the king and queen were presented with a splendid gift to which all the inhabitants, rich and poor, had an opportunity to contribute.
King Haakon VII of Norway was born Aug. 3, 1872, as the second son of the then Crown Prince Frederik, later King Frederik VIII of Denmark, and his wife, the Princess Alexandra of Greece. His father, King Christian X, the present Danish monarch, originally he was called Prince Charles and he received a thorough education as a naval officer, his training enabling him to command any kind of naval craft. When Norway in 1905 dissolved the union with Sweden the Christiania government offered the throne to Prince Charles. He accepted it, stating that he would adopt the old Norwegian royal name, Haakon, calling his son by the equally ancient name, Haakon.

BUTTER MILK
Not long ago I deprecated the marketing of such a food as wheat in a canned state, not because there is anything very objectionable or injurious in canned wheat, but because wheat is easily obtainable and will keep anywhere, and may be cooked when needed just as easily as any other undegenerated cereal. Moreover, to my mind it seems doubtful that when wheat is in its vitamins as well when cooked and canned as it does when kept in the natural dry state. The great idea in this country seems to be that some manufacturer must take all our food and either "purify" or "refine" it or put it through some mysterious "process" before it is quite fit for us to eat. Even such a simple and wholesome beverage as butter milk is nowadays subjected to the seal of approval of some manufacturer before it is offered to the consumer, in many communities, I quote from a business letter sent to me by a physician of a city by one such manufacturer: "A well known physician has stated that butter milk is liquid meat, with the fat trimmed off and the whey, except the cream—the most indigestible and biliousness producing element in the milk. Butter milk is also partly digested, for the whey is split up into fine and frequent curds and the milk acidulated, saving the stomach this work." The spelling and punctuation and English used in this letter are little worse than the physiology abused therein. The complacency of ignorance is curious to behold. It would be nearer the truth to say that butter milk has only half the nutritive or food value of plain milk and much less than half its value in vitamins. And it is this ignorance, manufacturer's personal theory merely, that butter milk is more digestible than cheese—a rather strange theory, too, for a manufacturer of butter. A fair deal of undeserved reputation is attached to butter milk and scores of milk as beverages. These fermented preparations, all of them, from natural butter milk to the fancy fancy fermented milk products, are wholesome enough for most persons to drink, perhaps beneficial in certain digestive difficulties and intestinal conditions, but that is about all. Metchnikoff's theory, that one should take a pint of soured skimmed milk every day (skimmed milk being five minutes then cooled to lukewarm, or about body temperature and soiled with a culture of Bulgarian bacillus to sour it), has little to support it. There is no good reason to imagine that any particular breed or brand of lactic acid bacilli, under whatever fancy title, will accomplish any more than those present in ordinary butter milk. ASK US
(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing The Gazette Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, 202-204 E. Milwaukee St., Janesville, Wis., and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope in enclosed. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)
Q. Does a person get hydrophobia if a dog which has bitten him goes mad afterward? Is a person sure to contract the disease if bitten by a rabid animal? J. R. H.
A. The bureau of animal industry says that there is no foundation for the belief that persons bitten by a dog which subsequently becomes rabid will contract the disease. The bite of a rabid dog is fatal in practically all cases where the virus is transmitted if no treatment is given, but only three times out of 10 is the virus actually transmitted.
Q. Please give a recipe for pickled peaches that will keep in stone jars. B. A. H.
A. One pint vinegar, four pounds sugar, 10 pounds fruit. Soak two or three days in each peach, boil sugar and vinegar, add the fruit and cook until tender. Place in fruit jar, pour over the boiling syrup, to which may have added a little cinnamon or other spices. The next day drain off, boil and pour over the fruit. Repeat for three days. Peaches prepared in this manner will keep with sugar and vinegar. What is the earliest known legal code? R. S. S.
A. The Code of Hammurabi, formulated by the Babylonian king of that name, more than 2,000 years before Christ, is the oldest legal code known. The Law of Hammurabi is engraved on a block of black diorite nearly eight feet high and consists of 413 paragraphs. The law is divided particularly under the heads of persons and property.
Q. How much does the government spend in a year for wrapping twine? A. C. S.
A. The postoffice department says that for the year ending June 30, 1921, $682,842.25 was spent for twine.
Q. What is the purpose of the Corn Law here? R. H. H.
A. This fund of $5,000,000 was set aside by Andrew Carnegie in 1901, to aid financially persons who have been injured in heroic efforts to save human life, or to aid the relatives of persons losing their lives in attempts to save their fellow men.
Q. Where is the largest rock salt deposit in the world? A. C. S.
A. The geological survey says that the largest deposit of this kind in the world, extends from northern Kansas across the west end of Oklahoma, the Texas panhandle, and southeastern New Mexico to western Texas, an area of nearly 100,000 square miles.
Q. What bird has the fastest wing? A. C. S.
A. The biological survey says for short distances the hummingbird is the fastest flying bird, but some of the larger birds, including pigeons and geese, are able to cover long distances in much less time.
Q. Please tell me how to waterproof the back of an old Brussels rug. M. W.
A. In order to waterproof textiles, it is necessary to soak them in the waterproofing solution for several hours. This would prove impractical for a carpet. We would suggest that you give the back of your carpet one or two thin coats of a first class grade of varnish, being sure to let the first coat thoroughly dry before the second is applied.

Dinner Stories
Though the exigencies of his profession obliged Horace Hamlat to be clean-shaven when he was acting, it was his delight to grow a mustache when he was out of a job. This little fable was also the delight of his ivy-friends. One day he was accused by a fellow worker with the exclamation: "What, ho, Horace, old boy! You don't mean to say you've been out of work all that long mustache!" A man, driving home on a very wet night, wished to give the cab driver something to keep out the cold. Finding nothing at hand but a paper plate with a few glasses, he filled up one and handed it to the driver, remarking: "You'll think none the worse of this because it was made by the holy monks." "God bless the holy monks!" exclaimed the driver, as he drained the glass: "It's themselves that can make good liquor, but the man that blows that glass was very short of breath." The youth who had persisted in walking on the extreme outer edge of the sea wall finally tumbled into the

HOROSCOPE
The stars incline, but do not compel. WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1921.
Astrologers read this as a most unfavorable day. Uranus, Mars and Jupiter are all in malefic aspect. Warning is given that the mind should be guarded against the entrance of despondent thoughts for the rule will be depressing; owing to the sinister power of Uranus. Sufferers may increase in number at this time when the weather will be extremely warm and debilitating. There is a sign read as encouraging destructive criticism and thwarting methods in public affairs. Many municipal governments will suffer at this time. Again Mars gives warning of possible war or at least like results. It is not an auspicious rule under which to confer with leaders in any activity and all important business meetings would be better if deferred, since a spirit of pessimism is likely to rule while this configuration prevails. Women may find themselves especially susceptible to planetary conditions today. They should be careful to avoid the phase of apogee which are said to be apparent in feminine human nature at this time. Trading or any sort of commercial activity is not likely to be successful when Jupiter is inimical as in today's aspect. Important changes in the affairs of England and increased unrest among the people are indicated for the autumn. The king is subject to the most unfavorable planetary influences. A noted woman in England will die, and many on this side of the water will mourn for her, in the autumn. Persons whose birthdate it is may enter into litigation and lose their money within the year. There are who are expected to die. Children born on this day may be quick-tempered and rather careless. These subjects of Cancer may be successful if carefully trained, for they usually possess fine possibilities. (Copyright, 1921, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Tractors Disband With Men Drifting to Other Outfits

Perring to Lead Sangamo Electrics at Springfield; All Players Land Places

er, will connect with the Nash Motors company of Kenosha.

Earl (Lefty) Smithson, pitcher, will pitch on Sundays for Two Rivers in the Lake Shore league, making his home in Janesville and pitching during the week in nearby towns.

Jack Watson, pitcher, will play with Wisconsin teams.

How It Started

First signs of the breaking up of the club came when "Hal" Perring, left fielder, quit the club at Dubuque several weeks ago to accept an offer with the Iron Range league at Cassper, Wyo. Next followed the acceptance by William (Rusty) Lathrop, pitcher, and Ray Shook, catcher, to play with the Beloit Fairies.

Manager Perring has used almost herculean methods to keep the team together following the death of the Tractor City Athletic association. His men had been restless for many months, receiving a large number of offers, but he was able to keep them together until the first dicker came from Springfield. Following the first falling away, the men themselves started drifting for other jobs. With this situation facing him, Perring finally accepted the management of the Illinois Capitol club, but not until every one of his players had landed places.

Field Meeting Tuesday

Decision to scatter to the four winds was made at a meeting held by the ball players with Perring at the Red Cross pharmacy, baseball headquarters here, Tuesday afternoon. The matter was thrashed out. All that is left is for the fans of Janesville to perform the funeral rites.

Indications are that if Perring satisfies the Springfield populace and gives them top-notch exhibitions, he will return there next spring. That will mean that this city will be in a difficult position if it makes any attempt to put another outfit of the same class in the field. Once a town goes broke on such a proposition, it is always a hard problem to start the game again.

"Hick" to Move
Breckinridge will move his family to Springfield as soon as he can make the change. He is now seeking a buyer for his home here which he purchased last year when things looked exceptionally busy. Holland will also make a change of residence. Schwind will very likely keep his home in Janesville, but all the other men will depart.

Outside of what he drew from profits made on the road trips, Perring got no salary this season on account of an agreement with the Tractor City Athletic association that no salary would be paid him, Lathrop or Shook until June 1, and only then if there were sufficient profits. However, this hinged on the directors of the association collecting the $4,200 subscribed to the community baseball fund, which the ball players declare was not done. As the finances of the association stand Wednesday morning there is about $9 in the treasury received from the Booster game of June 29 and bills totaling in the neighborhood of $40.

History of Season.

There will possibly be a meeting of the association to determine what to do with the funds on hand. The players claim that the receipts from the Booster game should go to them.

Briefly sketched the downfall of the team started when it was announced by the Sunston Tractor company early in the spring that business conditions would not permit retaining the men on the payroll for another season. At a mass meeting of local sportsmen held shortly afterwards, a citizens committee of 25 was appointed by Mayor Thomas E. Welsh to endeavor to keep the team going. From that grew the Tractor City Athletic association with a directorship of seven with George Perring in charge of the team. A subscription drive followed and pledges of $4,200 received.

Beloit Refuses.
The club was continued as a member of the Central Industrial baseball league but the first trouble in booking games came when the Simmons Red company of Kenosha re-

Local Women Lose Golf to Madison

Playing their second inter-city golf match of the season, women of the Janesville country club fell before their Madison Bluff sisters at Madison Tuesday. The score was 28 to 7. A return match will be held between the two clubs upon the Janesville links some time in September.

Fourteen Janesville women played. They were Mesdames Arthur Harris, J. L. Wilson, Frank Biedgott, Alice Sale, A. J. Gibbons, S. M. Smith, Arthur Granger, George King, Edward Peterson, N. L. Carle, D. W. Holmes, the Misses Josephine Carle and Elizabeth Schickel, and Mrs. Mason of Highland Park.

Thirteen Madison women were present. They were served an excellent luncheon and later in the afternoon were given a light lunch. They returned home about 4:30.

On Friday of this week, the women of the Beloit country club will invade the local links. This will be a return match, Janesville having defeated them recently in a close and exciting contest.

Janesville Men Invade Links of Madison Club

Between 30 and 35 men of the Janesville country club motored to Madison Wednesday to play a return match with the Madison Bluff club of the Capitol city. Janesville already has a victory to their credit over the Madison players. A match will be played between the professionals of each club.

TENNIS TRIALS TO START WEDNESDAY

(By Associated Press.)
Playground tennis trials for those under 16 and those over that age start Wednesday and continue until August 5. Entries should be made with the directors on the several grounds. Both doubles and singles matches will be held with prizes for each.

The final tournament to determine the city championship will be held at the Jefferson courts, the first game taking place August 8 at 6:45.

"GIVE MORE SPORT NEWS"—NORTHCLIFFE

(By Associated Press.)
New York—Lord Northcliffe, British publisher, who has been on the links practically every day while he has been in this city on his way to the Far East, is an ardent believer in sport news.

"Give us a lot of sport news," he told callers at an all day reception to follow newspapermen. "It should be plentifully interchanged between nations. It helps to create good fellowship. If we obtain cheaper cable tolls undoubtedly we will have more international sports sent broadcast."

QUALIFYING CARDS FOR PREXY CUP MUST BE IN SUNDAY

Qualifying cards for competition for the president's prize for men at the Janesville country club must be in not later than next Sunday, according to an announcement made at the club Tuesday. The play will continue for four weeks.

Fort Snelling. — D. J. Dalton, of Warsaw, Ind., won the amateur trap shooting championship of the second Great Lakes zone tournament breaking 185 of 200 targets.

Used to keep its schedule because Janesville played with a Chicago club which had been outlawed. From then on it was extremely difficult to get real competition. Perring explaining it by declaring that a baseball "political ring" in Chicago was working against him. Efforts to get games with Beloit, through the dispatching of a committee of prominent men from Janesville, which met with a Beloit committee and tenth of the Fairbanks-Morse plant, failed. Then came the taking over of the club and now is passing into history.

dian entries for a trophy donated by L. P. Ordway, Sr., Commodore of the White Bear Yacht club of St. Paul, Minn. In addition to the American yachts Bootlegger and Freebooter, which have just captured the Royal St. Lawrence challenge cup, seven Canadian class B yachts competed.

Nix on the "Parley-Voo" stuff!

A FRIEND of mine.
WHO COULDN'T speak
A WORD of French.
WENT TO PARIS.
AND THE first time,
HE HAD to get
A HAIRCUT and shave.
HE PRACTICED an hour.
MAKING SIGNS.
IN THE looking glass.
SO THE French barber.
WOULD UNDERSTAND him.
AND THEN he went in.
AND WIGGLED his fingers.
THROUGH HIS hair.
AND STROKED his chin.
AND THE barber grinned,
AND FINISHED the job.
THEN MY friend thought,
HE'D BE polite.
SO HE gave the barber.
AN AMERICAN cigarette.
WHICH THE barber smoked.
AND MY friend pointed,
TO HIS mouth.
AND SAID "Likee?"
AND THE barber roared.
AND SAID "You BET."
I USED to smoke 'em.
WHEN I worked.
IN INDIANAPOLIS.
AND BELIEVE me,
THEY SATISFY!"

HERE'S a smoke that talks in any language and needs no interpreter. Light up a Chesterfield, draw deep and more plainly than words your smile will tell the world "They Satisfy." It's the blend that does it—and you can't get "Satisfy" anywhere except in Chesterfields, for that blend can't be copied!
